

Phill (Born: October 12, 1960)

★ In 1965, at the age of 5, Phill was exposed to Rock music because of his 10 and 5 year-old older brothers' influence. During the 60s, the world was chock-full of Swinging London Fever, and it was a time when Rock and Fashion cannot be separated. Phill was attracted to a view of the world of Rock, and became interested in music and musician's fashion, such as the Beatles, The Rolling Stones, The Kinks, The Who and The Small Faces.

★ During the 70s, the whole world was celebrating the golden age of Rock. Long hair was hip, bell-bottom pants and platform-soled shoes were in fashion, and heavy hard rock was at the top of charts, playing the rhythms of The Led Zeppelin, The Deep Purple, The King Crimson and Pink Floyd. Phill was hooked, celebrating with the rest of the baby boomers.

★ At the age of 13, his time of puberty, Phill became interested in the glam rock. He started to put make up on his own face and styling his hair in the likes of David Bowie, Iggy Pop and Marc Bolan. Phill had found a meaning in creating something as cool as a view of the world of Rock.

★ Around 1975, it was a unprecedented punk rock boom. Phill was more impressed by the fashion and hair of The Sex Pistols than their music. He thought this was "the view of the world of Rock" he had been looking for long time that was creation of Malcolm McLaren and Vivienne Westwood.

★ Around 1976, Phill started creating a specific view of the world of Rock. He was influenced by Andy Warhol and decided to become a creator of a view of the world of Rock for a living. He learned contemporary art, such as in photography, painting, poetry and sculpture, to express all the feats of Andy.

★ In 1979, He enrolled in Cosmetology courses to pursue a career in hair styling and make-up in order to create his own view of the world of Rock.

★ In 1982, He went to an Art School for 3 years to study fashion design to further his own expression in the world of Rock. Phill was in demand as hairdresser and makeup artist for models and actresses.

★ In his 20s, Phill continued to pursue all genres of music not only Rock, but also Jazz, Bossa Nova, Soul, Reggae, etc. to find out their common elements and to create his own view of the world of Rock.

★ In 2016, Phill met Nicky for the first time after 40 years over SNS. It was a great and an impactful reunion with her. From childhood to adolescence, both were longing for this event! Nicky told Phill about her 30 years of experience of singing and performing. When Phill listened to Nicky's demo tape, he instantly got hooked with her unique voice and expression. At that very moment, Phill decided to be Nicky's music producer. Phill realized that he could now use all his experience, know how and efforts to create his own view of the world of Rock, making Nicky shine with the best selection of songs, visual, fashion, art, literary, culture, etc. In his 50s, Phill also realized the purpose of life is "Nothing But You". That was how Phill and Nicky started to deliver the melody of "LOVE" to all of the world to enjoy.
